'The World According to Monsanto':

film screening and discussion

Spegeln Wednesday 16.00

Monsanto is the world leader in genetically modified organisms (GMOs), one of the biggest seed manufacturers, and one of the most controversial corporations in history.

It's faced trials due to their products toxicity, incl. PCBs, herbicides like Agent Orange used during the Vietnam War, and bovine growth hormones, banned in Europe.

Reinvented as a "life sciences" company in line with the virtues of sustainable development.

Monsanto says it with its GMO seeds and herbicides wants to solve world hunger and reduce environmental damage.

In the light of its past, can we believe its noble intentions?

Seminar: Currently, the strong GMO position in Europe is threatened by the new onslaught of the biotech industry in the face of the food crisis. We will discuss how we can work together in order to protect a GMO-free Europe and respect and appreciate the diversity of the world with some special guests.

ACTIVISM AND POLITICS
WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO WIN?

Director: Zanny Begg & Oliver Ressler, Austria/Australia 2008. 40 min. Language: English and German Filmed on the blockades at the G8 summit in Heiligendamm, Germany in June 2007. Focus on the current state of the counter-globalisation movement. The film, which combines documentary footage, interviews, and animation sequences, is structured around three questions pertinent to the movement: Who are we? What is our power?

What would it mean to win? This film aims to move beyond the question of whether we are "winning" or not by addressing what would it actually mean to win. Oliver Ressler is an artist based in Vienna (AT). His projects address issues such as racism, genetic engineering, global capitalism, forms of political resistance and social alternatives. www.ressler.at

A climate movement capable of halting catastrophic climate change will have to mobilise very large numbers, and therefore must be based on climate justice and social equality.
